Evaluation letter

The Erasmus+ training course “Imagination and Creativity in Youth Work (ICREYOU)”, implemented in Poland, was a highly valuable experience for participants from Armenia. The project was well-organized and created a supportive, multicultural environment that fostered meaningful collaboration and personal development. Through diverse non-formal education methods—such as creative workshops, storytelling, improvisation, and group exercises—the Professional Development Activity (PDA) was implemented effectively, enabling participants to explore creativity as a practical tool in youth work. The dynamic international setting further enhanced peer learning, intercultural exchange, and the development of strong professional connections.

The project’s added value was reflected both in its tangible and intangible outcomes. The co-creation of the ICREYOU Manual provided practical tools for inclusive and creative youth work, while participants reported increased confidence, improved communication skills, and strengthened capacity to apply innovative methods in their professional contexts. Importantly, the impact extended beyond the training itself. Upon their return to Armenia, participants successfully disseminated the acquired knowledge through a combination of online sessions and an offsite workshop conducted in Gavar, ensuring both wider reach and direct community engagement.
